CHRIST OF THE ANDES

"Sooner shall these mountains crumble into dust than the peoples of Argentina and Chile break the peace which at the feet of Christ the Redeemer they have sworn to maintain."

So reads the inscription on a 20-foot-high granite pedestal carrying the impressive statue "Christ of the Andes", erected in 1904 as a symbol of everlasting peace. It stands a short distance south of the snowy peak of Aconcagua, above La Cumbre Pass, on the frontier between Argentina and Chile, to mark the end of a dispute between these two nations which had lasted over half a century.

Cast from the bronze of guns removed from frontier fortresses and melted down in the Arsenal at Buenos Aires, the statue was taken by train as far as the rails were laid; then drawn on gun carriages by mules to the summit, and where even mules failed at the ascent, soldiers and sailors of both governments dragged it up with ropes to its 13,000 foot site on the mountain top.
